PineStone Inn closing for winter

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The PineStone Inn has closed its doors until May, laying off about 90 employees. On Friday afternoon, at a meeting held in one of the resort's convention rooms, management broke the news to the staff that the PineStone would suspend normal operations for the next five months.

After the meeting, general manager

D'Arcy McKittrick said the decision to close until spring was made by the board of directors in response to the sluggish tourism market.

"We had to face up to the fact that there isn't enough business between November and May to meet the costs of an operation our size," McKittrick told The Times. "For 1992 we will be a seasonal operation, which is the case for a majority of resorts in Ontario."

McKittrick said he wanted to allay any fears about the future of the resort. "This is not a bankruptcy. The action was taken to make sure bankruptcy is not an issue." Although some suppliers have expressed concern about the closure, McKittrick said the resort will continue to pay all of its bills.

Suspension of resort operations will mean temporary lay-off for the approximately 90 employees currently on PineStone's payroll. The resort will continue to pay for the staff's benefit package and McKittrick said all employees will be recalled when the resort resumes operations in the spring.

Fifty employees were already laid-off at the beginning of November. They were supposed to return to work just prior to Christmas, but the lay-offs will now be extended to May.

Because the staff has been put out of work on a temporary lay-off, employees will be immediately eligible for unemployment insurance and will have to wait the minimum amount of time before receiving UIC benefits.

Some of the employees will be called back at the end of March as the resort prepares for the spring start-up and by summer the resort

Market value re-assessment decision delayed by county

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Market value re-assessment will not be implemented in Haliburton County until at least 1993.

Last Wednesday county council decided to defer the issue until after the newly-elected councillors take office next month.

This is the second time the current council has delayed making a decision on the controversial issue. Early in the year it passed a similar resolution after a majority of municipal councils asked for a deferral.

If implemented, all properties in the county would be re-assessed at their 1988 values for the purpose of determining property taxes.

It is expected that re-assessment would result in an increase in the portion of taxes paid on waterfront properties, which rose dramatically in value in the years leading up to 1988, compared to other residential land.

Last Wednesday's discussion on market value re-assessment was not on the agenda for council's consideration but was brought the floor because of a letter from the regional assessment office.

The letter said that the municipal assessment rolls will be delayed until the council had made a decision on re-assessment.

The assessment rolls are the lists of properties in each municipality and are used to calculate the amount of property tax owed by each property owner.

In a recorded vote, the councillors decided to allow the discussion on market value re-assessment even though the issue was not on the agenda. Minden Reeve Bern Berry cast the lone dissenting vote, saying there should be more time allowed for public meetings before any action is taken.

Once the issue was open for discussion, Warden Carol Puffer explained the letter, received from the assessment office in September, which said the rolls would be delayed until a decision had been reached.

However in a phone call last Tuesday, assessment officer Ron Young told the county that the revenue ministry had changed directions and would return the assessment rolls at the usual time in December if the county did not want to make an immediate decision on market value re-assessment.

Puffer said this would allow council to defer the issue until after the new councillor take office and the county would still have the option of implementing market value re-assessment by 1993.

In supporting the decision to defer, Dysart (more on page 2)

Lutterworth puts industrial park on hold

by Susan Grober

Budget restraints have forced Lutterworth council to give up on developing its industrial park site.

"We've got to make up our minds whether to go further or sit on it for awhile," Councillor Maurice Boyd — who has been working on the project — told council at last Thursday's meeting.

Boyd suggested it would be too costly to continue with the industrial park at this time, since costly hydro-geological tests are required by the Ministry of the Environment.

The tests will more than consume a grant already provided by the Ministry of Industry, Trade and Technology (MITT) to assist development of the site on Highway 121, north of Kinmount.

"I hate to say it, but we have come to an impasse," said Boyd. "We hit a wall we can't go over."

Although council has applied for more funding, Boyd feels it wouldn't be wise for council to budget more township funds for the project during this time of recession.

Boyd said the hydro-geological tests would cost more than $4,000, and that a road needed to access the 30-acre property would cost a minimum of $100,000.

"If we go ahead with the grant, we won't get more than half of the money we need," he said.

90 people laid off from resort

will be fully staffed, says McKittrick.

The decision to suspend operations was made in anticipation of a slow winter. McKittrick said the board of directors decided any money spent covering an operating deficit for the next six months would be better spent in improving the resort's operation during the summer season.

"Our marketing effort will continue but we are going to focus down to the six-month period of May to October.

"Our business was down this year from 1990 levels and with things being slow it's showing up more in the weaker season," said McKittrick. "We are down significantly more than we anticipated, that's why the decision was made to focus on May to October."

Managerial staff will stay on at the resort to run the sales office, answer the phones and take reservations for the summer.

The long-term goal of the board of directors is to resume year round operations but, before that can happen, McKittrick says there has to be sufficient business to support the PineStone during the winter.

The managers have begun to notify people who have reservations at the resort from now until May to inform them of the closure. McKittrick said there are five or six groups booked in for January and a couple more in February, as well as a few social events during the winter.

One area which will not be affected by the move is the operation of the cross-country ski trails on the PineStone's property. McKittrick says the trail system is maintained by the Haliburton Highlands Nordic Trail Association and will still be open for use during the winter. He says an arrangement might be made with the association to arrange for the sale of trail passes at the resort.

Ironically, a meeting is being held at the PineStone on Tuesday to discuss ways of better marketing the county's tourist industry.

The meeting is being sponsored by the Ministry of Tourism and Recreation and will involve local businesses and municipal officials. McKittrick says the meeting will go ahead as planned despite the closure and the resort will be honouring other one-day events in December, including the staff Christmas party.

The sudden closure of the county's largest tourist operation, even if just for the winter, has come as a shock to local business owners and municipal politicians.

"It's astounding, it's just incredible," said Curtis Eastmure, owner of the Maple Sands resort and a director of the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce.

After consulting with other Chamber members, Eastmure commented on the PineStone's decision.

"We are all shocked by the development," he said. "It's going to affect the marketing that is done in the winter. The PineStone spent a lot of money outside the county to bring people in during the winter."

Eastmure says the county will not only miss the spin-offs from the PineStone's business, it will also feel the effect of having almost a hundred local people laid off.

"If citizens of this county don't realize how significant tourism is to the economy, they are certainly going to find out in the next month or two," he said.

Carol Puffer, who is just finishing her term as County Warden, was also shocked by the news of the closure. "It's hard to absorb, I'm so surprised at the whole thing." She said the decision is an indication that the county can not expect an immediate recovery from the recession.

She also said the announcement shows there is a need to place more emphasis on tourism promotion for the fall, winter and spring months.

Warden says farewell to Lutterworth council

by Susan Grober

Carol Puffer said her goodbyes last Thursday after serving six years on Lutterworth council.

Puffer started on council as Lutterworth's deputy-reeve in 1985, served her last term as reeve, and the past year as the county's warden.

The council members and staff told Puffer it has been a pleasure working with her, and wished her the best in future endeavours.

Bill Valentine, who has been on council many years and also served as reeve, said he has particularly enjoyed working as a councillor with Puffer as reeve.

"I must say you are the best reeve I have ever worked with," said Valentine. "Having been there myself, I know what's involved. And you've done a super job."

Puffer thanked the council members for their work over the past two terms. "You guys just do your job so well — what can I say?" she said, after closing the meeting in record time.

Puffer didn't run in this year's election, and has been replaced by newcomer Cam Ecclestone, who was acclaimed to the reeve position.

Council's inaugural meeting will be held Tuesday, December 3, at 4:15 p.m.

Re-assessment delayed again by county council

Reeve Bill Davis said market value re-assessment had played an important part in the recent municipal election and should be dealt with by the successful candidates.

He urged councillors to "vote with their heads instead of their hearts," and said a deferral would allow more time for public meetings at the municipal levels.

Minden Deputy-Reeve Mike Maher also supported a deferral. He said delaying the issue would give council, "the best of both worlds" because the assessment rolls will not be delayed and the new council will have its input.

Voting on market value assessment before the new council takes office would "leave a bad taste in everyone's mouth," he said.

Snowdon Reeve George Simmons said that when council delayed the issue in January, it was anticipated that each municipality would hold a public meeting on market value re-assessment to get input from residents. He said most of the municipal council have neglected the issue and he supported delaying the issue in the hope that the new council would "take it seriously."

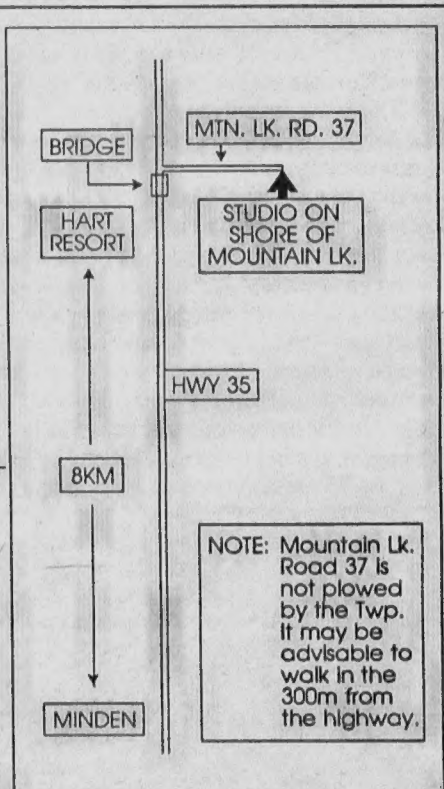

When it came time for a vote, the councillors passed a resolution to defer the issue and ask that assessment rolls be returned without delay along with updated market value re-assessment figures for consideration by the new council for possible implementation in 1993.

Deer shooting at golf course sparks controversy in Minden

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Minden's Superintendent of Public Works was suspended from duty last week, following the shooting of a deer on the Beaverbrook Golf Course.

The deer was shot by Eldon McCracken who was hunting on the golf course with the permission of owner Dave Stevens. Public works superintendent Clayton Cameron was with McCracken at the time the deer was shot and has been suspended by Minden council, although the reasons for the disciplinary action are unclear.

According to Minden OPP the deer was shot on the morning of Monday, November 11 just before 10 a.m. An officer was sent to the scene after receiving phone calls from residents concerned about the sound of a gun shot close to town.

Because the incident was hunting-related, the OPP called in a Ministry of Natural Resources conservation officer. An investigation by the MNR found no violations of any provincial laws or hunting regulations.

McCracken is also a municipal employee but was on vacation at the time and was hunting with a valid license and using his own truck.

The incident has become the subject of widespread rumours in the village with varying accounts of how many deer were involved and who did the shooting. In the two weeks since the deer was shot, both The Times and the MNR have received numerous phone calls from people wondering about the incident.

Minden's by-law enforcement officer Tom Hubercheck says there is a municipal by-law prohibiting the discharge of firearms within the village, but that no charges have been laid in the shooting at Beaverbrook.

He said council is handling the entire event, and he has not been asked to become involved beyond providing information about the by-law.

Councillor Lewis Stevens confirmed that Cameron was suspended by council as part of a disciplinary action for his part in the incident.

He would not specify why Cameron was disciplined except to say that the superintendent, "could have addressed the situation better." He said the council was still considering whether or not charges should be laid under the municipality's by-law which covers the discharge of firearms.

Because the matter involved a municipal employee, Stevens would not comment further and referred all other questions to Reeve Bern Berry.

Berry would not comment at all on the incident. He said it was a sensitive personnel matter which had been dealt with by council in a closed meeting.

Contacted at home, Cameron was reluctant to talk about his suspension except to say he was at the golf course when McCracken shot the deer and he emphasized the fact that a full investigation by the MNR had turned up no wrong-doing or infractions.

MPP hosts meeting in Lindsay to talk about the constitution

This Friday, Victoria-Haliburton's MPP will be hosting a town hall meeting in Lindsay to discuss the proposed reforms to Canada's constitution.

"This is a critical period in the development of a new constitution," says Dennis Drainville.

Drainville chaired Ontario's select committee on the constitution and will be presenting the results of Ontario's consultation with the province of Quebec and the Atlantic provinces, and will also discuss a proposal, put forward by the Ontario government, to include a social charter in the reformed constitution.

"This debate is too important for citizens to sit back," said Drainville. "While people are preoccupied, and quite rightly so, with the economy, it is equally important for people to be concerned about the future of our country. What most people might not realize is that the very future of the country is at stake and that affects the health of our economy very directly and very deeply."

The meeting is at the Lindsay Armory on Friday, November 25, at 7:30 p.m.

Ministry rules make park too costly gested council should put the project on hold, and build up a reserve fund to develop the industrial-zoned property in the future.

"Right now, I'd hate to see the land sold," she said. "It's just too hard to get that zone. It may take years to get the park, and we may never see it. But we may help someone else follow through on it."

When the township applied for the initial (MITT) grant earlier this year, the application was circulated to other ministries for consideration. In response, the environment ministry said tests should be carried out on the area to determine possible impact to the water table before any development takes place.

Boyd said he knows of another township which has also faced a number of setbacks with its industrial park project, and that companies have given up interest in that site.

However, Lutterworth still has two people interested in its industrial park, he said with frustration.

Reeve Carol Puffer commended Boyd for his dedication to the project.

"You've done a lot of work on this, Maurice, and to have the Ministry of the Environment do something like this at the last moment is really discouraging," said Puffer. "I'm disappointed for you. The way these ministries keep changing the rules is really awful."

Mercer said the thousands of dollars needed for the industrial park would be better used toward setting up a fire department in Lutterworth, "which could benefit all the ratepayers."

At present, Lutterworth buys fire protection services from the townships of Minden, Somerville, and Laxton, Digby and Longford, and these fees have been steadily increasing.

Over the years, council has discussed setting up a central fire department in the township for improved service and cost efficiency.

Puffer noted that: "Some of the people in Minden are saying the small municipalities should be looking after themselves — it's kind of scary."

"We may be in for a rude awakening," said Mercer. "It would be a worthwhile endeavour if we had the money."

Barb Dawson named 1991 Highlander of the Year

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Haliburton resident Barb Dawson has been named as 1991's Highlander of the Year by the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce.

The award was presented to Dawson in recognition of her more than 30 years of community service to the county, highlighted by her involvement in local health care issues and two terms as Chamber president.

Chamber director Shawn Hagerman presented the award at last Wednesday's annual meeting, held at the Bonnie View Inn.

"She came here as a bride and adopted this place as her own," Hagerman said in his introduction. "Over time, her activities have ranged from being a high school drum majorette to changing bed pans at our hospital to helping us fill in our income tax forms. She has nursed us, worked with us and inspired us."

Dawson played an instrumental role when she chaired the fundraising committee to build the county's 18-bed chronic care addition to the Haliburton Hospital. The committee was successful in raising $440,000 within a year and "made believers of us all," said Hagerman.

Although the issue of long-term care has not been resolved, Hagerman said Dawson, "has shown to all of us that one person can make a difference."

"She is the one who has shared the good wherever she has found it and we are all the richer for it," he said.

Dawson thanked the directors for the award. She said she attended her first Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce meeting 30 years ago and the following year was chosen as the first female Chamber of Commerce president in Ontario.

"The Chamber keeps repeating its history," she said. "It's constantly having to fight for recognition from businesses, county and municipal governments."

Dawson said she still hopes the 18-bed addition becomes a reality and that many other good things come forth for the county.

Dawson has served as the Haliburton representative on the board of directors of St. Joseph's Hospital and was a member of the steering committee which drafted the directional plan for the county's health, housing and social service needs.

Park entrance possible

Haliburton County may soon have a southern access to Algonquin Park.

At last Wednesday's Chamber of Commerce annual meeting director Curtis Eastmure told members that the issue has been the topic of recent conversations with tourism minister Peter North, and that North favours the development of a southern entrance to the Park.

Local businesses have been pursuing the concept of a southern access in order to gain some benefit from the large number of visitors the Park attracts.

The county's economic development officer, Mark Stagg, was also at the Chamber annual meeting and he told the members that Ontario's natural resources minister Bud Wildman has confirmed that there will be some form of southern access to the Park from Haliburton County.

It was decided that John Beachli of the Chamber's board of directors should work with Stagg to pursue the Park entrance initiative.

During the election portion of the annual meeting, 12 board members were chosen from a list of 13 candidates.

Returning to the board are: Dennis Casey from Birch Point Lodge; Curtis Eastmure from Maple Sands Resort; Ann Barker from Ann Barker Catering; and Rhonda Elstone from Elstone Construction.

New directors elected to the board are: Derek Lowry from Moore Lake Inn; Ann Martino from the Bank of Montreal; John Beachli from John Beachli Construction; Brian Moore from Westside Jug City; Dorothy MacKenzie-Payne from Orange Grove Resort; Andy Salvatori from Curry Motors; Brian Dean from the Gift House North; and Sharon Lynch from the Haliburton and District Real Estate Board.

Haliburton Forest honoured

The winner of this year's Directors' Award for Business Excellence from the Chamber of Commerce exemplifies the qualities that make Haliburton County attractive.

At last Wednesday's annual meeting, Shawn Hagerman presented the award to the Haliburton Forest and Wildlife Reserve.

"Our county is different. It has all the services you would want or need, but its allure is the wilderness that comes right to your backdoor," said Hagerman. "It is that wilderness, the trout lakes, the moose, the wolves, the bear, deer and the hundreds of species of flora and fauna that make this county special."

"This year's winner has striven to keep Haliburton what it once was, is now and may in the future be, that of a place where once can still experience the thrill of nature's wilderness."

Hagerman mentioned Haliburton Forest's efforts in managing and preserving the forest for future generations, stocking lakes and using striking a balance between forestry management and tourism.

"Thanks for giving us a place where wilderness and people can still meet now and, if lucky, that our children can still enjoy in the future."

Ana Schleifenbaum, who owns the Haliburton Forest along with her husband Peter, accepted the award, thanking the Chamber for bringing the efforts of the Forest to the attention of the community.

Haliburton Forest owner Ana Schleifenbaum accepts the Business Excellence award from Shawn Hagerman at the Chamber of Commerce meeting.

Barb Dawson accepts her Highlander of the Year award from Chamber director Shawn Hagerman at last Wednesday's annual meeting held at the Bonnie View Inn. Dawson was recognized for her contributions to the community, especially her involvement in local health care issues.

Editorial

The sudden announcement on Friday that the PineStone Inn will be closing its doors for the next five months has sent shock waves through the county.

A major player in the county's marketing efforts, the resort is often described as the flagship of Haliburton's tourist industry.

Although the ship is far from sinking, it is discouraging to hear that it is going to be placed in dry dock for half the year.

The decision by PineStone's board of directors to switch to seasonal operation is a prudent business move based on the need to cut costs and concentrate on the resort's strong summer market.

And as startling as the news of the closure and the temporary lay-off of almost 100 employees is, the blow is softened somewhat in the knowledge that the PineStone will be up and running, fully staffed, by summer.

Perhaps this could serve as a warning shot to local business and government representatives about the need to develop new strategies to market the county on a year round basis.

With the recent election of a new county council, and last week's election of a new Chamber of Commerce board of directors, now is a good time for the two groups to meet face-to-face and plot a course to help get Haliburton County out of the recession.

If something isn't done to effectively increase the county's competitive position in the market, there may well be other closures before the winter is over, many of them permanent.

Tomorrow's conference at the PineStone will provide an opportunity for serious dialogue to begin, but it must be maintained until concrete answers are found.

Before the new council and the new Chamber executive can hope to achieve any sort of economic breakthrough, they must first resolve the question of how much money the county will contribute to the Chamber's efforts. A resolution to this issue can not be further delayed and can certainly not wait for the county to pass its 1992 budget in March.

No smoking flights blessing for some, purgatory for others

I've just been going over some old newspaper clippings. Here's one of the headlines I found:

EPP SUGGESTS SMOKING BAN ON ALL FLIGHTS

And a rather more blunt one:

OTTAWA TO AIRBORNE SMOKERS: BUTT OUT

What's surprising about these newspaper headlines is that they're not old. I clipped them out of the Globe and Mail in November, 1987. I find it hard to believe that four short years ago, smokers routinely lit up on flights as soon as the FASTEN SEAT BELTS sign was extinguished.

Fact is, we all metaphorically "lit up" — smokers and non-smokers alike. The flight attendants tried to keep the

by Arthur Black

nicotine addicts bunched in a special "smoking section" two-thirds of the way down the plane, but cigarette smoke is a notorious non-respecter of boundaries. If a smoker in 18B flicked his Bic, it wasn't too long before a non-smoker in 3A was wrinkling his or her nose.

Nowadays of course, smoking is verboten on all but international flights, and flying is infinitely more pleasant for everyone.

Well, almost everyone. Let us observe a moment of respectful silence (no coughing, please) for those poor wretches among us who suffer from two debilitating conditions: fear of flying and nicotine addiction.

Can you imagine what it must be like for them to endure a flight from, say, Moncton to Vancouver?

Not pretty, I'll bet. Probably a bit like it was for Oly Svane Thestrup. Mister Thestrup is a Danish actor who boarded a British Airways 747 in Vancouver not long ago. He thought he was going to London, England, but he woke up in a Winnipeg jail cell instead.

Attack on teachers puts Tax Watch off track

Editor:

Just like a lot of other ratepayers in Haliburton County, we watched with interest and applauded the formation of a "Community Tax Watch". After all, any sensible effort to monitor the spending of public money and thus restrain tax increases seemed deserving of support.

The October 21, 1991 issue of The Times carried a column authored by "Community Tax Watch" with an attack on our school teachers which makes me wonder whether the "Watch" people have a hidden political agenda. Perhaps (to be kind) they are frustrated in their efforts to identify real culprits in the ever expanding budget of County Government. I am disappointed with this transparent attempt to draw a distinction between Haliburton teachers and their Union, while currying public sympathy in the process. One does not have to carry a brief for Unions to recognize the use of inflammatory words such as "rich" and "too powerful". This is little more than the standard tactic of politicians seeking to divert attention from real issues and need. Who will be next after the teachers on the hit list of "Watch"? Nurses? Clerical Employees? Social Workers? I have yet to meet a wealthy school teacher or nurse unless they won the lottery. They certainly do not spend their retirement years wallowing in luxury as a result of too much pension income. You would need to look to Ottawa and Federal M.P.'s to find such affluence; certainly not in the school system.

Naturally, a substantial part of the municipal budget is attributable to salaried employees who help provide essential services to their community. The tax monitoring process however, should keep the heat where it belongs — on elected officials who determine the size of that workforce, levels of compensation as well as capital expenditures on plant and equipment.

Constructive criticism of the budget process in Haliburton County to inform and educate the electorate has been a worthwhile objective for "Community Tax Watch". Sensitizing candidates for office and frightening elected officials into prudence about public purse expenditures has also met with some success. I hope "Community Tax Watch" will soon get back on track.

South Lake.

Reader says smear tactics used in Stanhope campaign

Editor:

Congratulations to Mr. Fred Gardner on becoming the new Reeve of Stanhope Township. It is unfortunate however, that he will never know whether or not he could have won without the touch of a smear campaign such as I witnessed in the City of Toronto this past month.

I have always felt our elections here in Stanhope were fair, open and above board. I could not believe the flyer that was in my mailbox when I returned home on the weekend, stating Mrs. Barker was irresponsible and insinuating she was not to be trusted.

We have lived in Stanhope for a period of ten years and have always had, to the best of my knowledge, good coverage of the candidates and their positions on the issues, from both The Times and the Haliburton Echo. And the opportunity to attend the all candidates night enables one to question any candidate about any concerns we might have. Mrs. Barker's flyer invited voters to do just that — call her to address the issues and voice their concerns.

How sad to see the seamy side of Big City politics slowly infiltrating in Stanhope Township politics.

Mary Lawr,
Stanhope.

Portrayal was insulting

Editor:

I am writing on behalf of all "cottager voters" who were insulted and slandered by your editorial page cartoon of November 18, 1991, which depicted the "cottager voter" as an obese individual, wearing blinders and carrying a cocktail.

The accompanying editorial "Reaching Out" was filled with words of encouragement for a new sense of co-operation between seasonal and permanent residents in the Township to create a united cohesive community...the kind of municipality we can all be proud of.

Reading the editorial alone it was a commendable statement. However, reading it alongside the insulting cartoon, it was absolute hypocrisy!

(Webster's definition - Hypocrisy: Feigning to feel what one does not feel; the insincere use of pious phraseology).

Shame on you!

W.L. McCorriston, Soyers Lake.

Editor's Note: You are not alone in your reaction to the portrayal of "The Cottager". Our editorial comments were indeed sincere, but we also believe it is not hypocritical and is, in fact, our responsibility to present a variety of points of view on our editorial page.

Kudos for election staff

Editor:

I would like to commend the Administrative Staff of the municipal office for the excellent manner in which they handled the recent election.

Tammy McKelvey carried out her duties from the first instructional meeting to the final reporting of the ballots like a veteran.

Her assistants, Daisy Downes, Clayton Cameron and Dick Schell were a delight to work with at the Hyland Crest Polling Station.

Since moving to Minden some 15 years ago, I have worked at every election and I can say this was an excellent operation.

We are fortunate indeed, to have such capable staff managing Minden's municipal office.

Smokeless Dane winds up in Winnipeg hoosegow

And he owes it all to Dame Nicotine.

Mister Thestrup, you see, is a smoker. Imagine his consternation when he discovered that he had been put in a non-smoking seat for the ten-hour flight. He asked for a seat in the smoking section. Sorry, full up. He ranted. He raved. Then he went to the washroom.

Not long thereafter, sinuous tendrils of smoke began to issue out of the lavatory. And not long after that, the lavatory smoke detector went off. Things on British Airways Flight 347 got very ugly after that. Thestrup took a swing at a flight attendant. He threw a drink in the pilot's face. He tried to open an emergency door and step outside at 36,000 feet.

He became such a pain that the plane was forced to make an unscheduled landing. Which is how Oly Svane Thestrup, Danish thespian, ended up in a Winnipeg jail cell.

The manic-depressive Dane is but an extreme example of something flight attendants are encountering more and more often in the tobacco-free lanes of our airways these days — nicotine-crazed customers doing everything short of hijacking to sneak an in-flight smoke.

Despite the fact that they face a criminal record, possible banishment from future flights, a hundred dollar fine and humiliation in front of their fellow passengers, desperate smokers are going to insane — and dangerous — lengths to soothe the tobacco monkey on their back. Some have smashed the smoke alarms in aircraft washrooms. Others have tried stretching shower caps or even condoms over the sensors.

You'd think the removal of ashtrays from the washrooms might stymie die-hard puttheads. Not always. The airlines report cases of burning cigarettes being tossed into paper-filled waste bins.

Scary. Scary enough to convince me to toss a few extras into my carry-on bag next time I take a flight.

Such as chewing gum, sunflower seeds, some lollipops and maybe a can of snuff.

Not for me — I plan to leave them in the aircraft washrooms.

Proposed provincial Bill 60, The Optometry Act concerns Haliburton based optometrist

The following is an open letter to Victoria/Haliburton MPP Dennis Drainville:

Dear Rev. Drainville:

Re: Bill 60, The Optometry Act

I'm writing to you about my concerns regarding Bill 60, which is scheduled to pass its third and final reading in the next few weeks.

If this act is passed, it will require optometrists to refer some or most eye disorders or diseases immediately to an eye surgeon (ophthalmologist). I feel, as do most optometrists, that this is a step backward for the citizens of Ontario.

The best way to explain it is with an illustration. Presently, one of the eye diseases I see is cataract, very common in people over 60 years of age. Usually I first see the cataract at an early stage. What I do is inform the patient of my diagnosis (cataract), and explain that this disease will require surgery when it progresses to a sufficiently advanced stage. I then ask the patient to return regularly (yearly as a rule) so I can monitor the cataract(s). When the cataract has progressed to the point that surgery will soon be required, I then refer the patient to an eye surgeon for treatment. I've been diagnosing, monitoring and referring thousands of cataracts in this way since I started practice in 1976.

Under the new Bill 60, if a person presents to my office with an early cataract, I will not be allowed to even tell that patient that he/she has a cataract. I'll have to say that "something is wrong with your sight", and refer him/her to an eye surgeon. She (the eye surgeon) will then presumably tell the patient they have an early cataract and monitor the condition herself until she has to perform surgery. There are four basic things wrong with this:

1. A persons, usually over age 60, will have the unnecessary inconvenience and expense of traveling to an eye surgeon for several visits (original diagnosis plus monitoring visits), to have something looked at that can and is presently being taken care of by their own optometrist. As usual, the hardest hit will be the rural communities, such as Haliburton, which do not have their own eye surgeons.

2. There will be additional taxpayer cost because of the extra visit(s) required to an eye surgeon as well as the original visit to the optometrist (duplication of services). Also, OHIP currently pays more for a visit to an eye surgeon than to an optometrist and this would further add to taxpayer cost.

3. There will be unnecessary delays for the public in seeing and being treated by eye surgeons for diseases that require their attention. Presently, the eye surgeons I refer to are booked 6 to 8 months in advance for treatable referred conditions. If all the non-treatable or "to-be-monitored" diseases are referred, such as early cataract, the eye surgeons will surely be booked a few years ahead!

4. It is unjust to take away the rights and privileges of my profession. I have the training, skill and desire to properly diagnose and monitor many eye diseases and have been doing so for the past 15 years. One of the reasons I came to this rural community is because I could be of greatest help; it's important to put my training and skills to their utmost use, and I very much enjoy being as useful as I can possibly be.

So, as you can plainly see Rev. Drainville, this law is inconvenient, expensive, unjust and totally unnecessary.

If family doctors were asked to immediately refer all diseases to medical specialists, the public would certainly get "the very best" health care at all times. But that too would cause unnecessary inconvenience and cost to the public; that too would be prohibitively expensive for an already unaffordable health care system; that too would cause unnecessary delays; and yes, that too would be grossly unjust to the family doctors who have always and presently take good care of their patients, as optometrists have taken good care of their patients.

A community, such as Haliburton, that has not yet seen their much-begged-for hospital expansion surely doesn't deserve further inconvenience and expense thrust upon its (mainly older) population.

Therefore, it is my hope that you (and the residents of Haliburton County) will fight against this new bill.

Dr. Rene A. Benoit,
Optometrist,
Haliburton, Ontario

Fall meeting of the UCW held in Minden

The Fall executive meeting of Lindsay Presbyterial was held in Minden on October 23.

Carol Thompson, President, opened the meeting with a poem. Pat Bradburn officially welcomed the ladies on behalf of the Minden

U.C.W. Marjorie Morrison led in an impressive worship based on the theme "The In-Between Times". As the fireweed after a forest fire grows and holds the soil together so must we work together in times of changes.

The usual business items were dealt with. Much time was spent discussing the new format for rallies. A motion passed that a presentation for change be brought to the annual meeting for implementation in 1993.

Joyce Junkin announced that she would be sending in money at the end of the year for Bursary Fund, Quin Mo Lac, etc. and urged that U.C.W.'s submit any contributions as soon as possible.

Marjorie Morrison explained that the Heinz Company will pay 6 cents per label from baby food for the Hospital for Sick Children project. As well as the pill bottles, short pencils are needed in Jamaica.

Pat Burley distributed brochures for the Youth Tracks in November in Belleville. Grace was sung prior to lunch.

Santa comes to Haliburton

With a 'Ho, Ho, Ho,' everyone's favourite jolly old elf was the guest of honour at Haliburton's first Santa Claus parade last Saturday

New county engineer no stranger to Haliburton

by Susan Grober

Although he has practical experience to lend to his position as the new Haliburton County engineer, David Valentine has spent much of his career in the classroom.

After earning degrees at both Guelph University and the University of Toronto, Valentine worked in Victoria County as assistant engineer in 1960, and then as county engineer in 1965.

But Valentine's career took a turnaround in 1967, when he joined the teaching staff of Sir Sandford Fleming College, which had just started in Lindsay.

Valentine co-ordinated the courses in civil technology and in construction techniques.

"It was quite a challenge because the college was brand new," he says. "I set up the program, as well as organizing staff and equipment."

In 1970, Valentine began work at the Lindsay School of Natural Resources, which took over forestry training formerly taught at Dorset's Leslie M. Frost Natural Resources Centre.

And a year later he accepted another challenge by travelling to Africa to spend two years teaching at the Zambia Institute of Technology. ("That's ZIT, for short," he says with a chuckle.)

Valentine taught and developed curricula for civil and mining engineering at the Zambian school.

"What makes anybody go to Africa?" he says when asked why he made the trip. "It was a lot of things. My brother Bill, who is on Lutterworth council, spent two years teaching in Africa.

And I felt so lucky to be in Canada, that I thought I should spread myself around.

"It turned out that was a stupid reason to go," he says. "I got so much more than I gave, in understanding the people, and appreciating what we have here. It's great to look at Canada from a distance."

Valentine learned Canadians are quite spoiled compared to those in Africa. "People there were so able to get along on virtually nothing. The culture shock was greater coming back than going over. Everybody here is so wasteful."

There was also a big difference in the African students. "They were very bright, well-disciplined, and eager to learn," Valentine says. "They hand-picked the brightest students."

When he returned from Africa, Valentine went back to teaching at Sir Sandford.

He spent a sabbatical year at Florida State University, completing the course work for a doctorate in education. And two years ago, he earned a Master of Science degree in natural resources at Edinburgh University.

In August of 1990, after 23 years of teaching, Valentine resigned from his job at Sir Sandford. "I'd been there too long," he says. "I think the routine got to me. Some teachers don't mind it, but I found it rather deadening."

"I do like teaching, though," he says. "One of the things I pursued during my freelance work since resigning is developing workshops. But I didn't want to go back to the classroom day after day, week after week."

Now Valentine is ready to return to the variety-filled job of a county engineer.

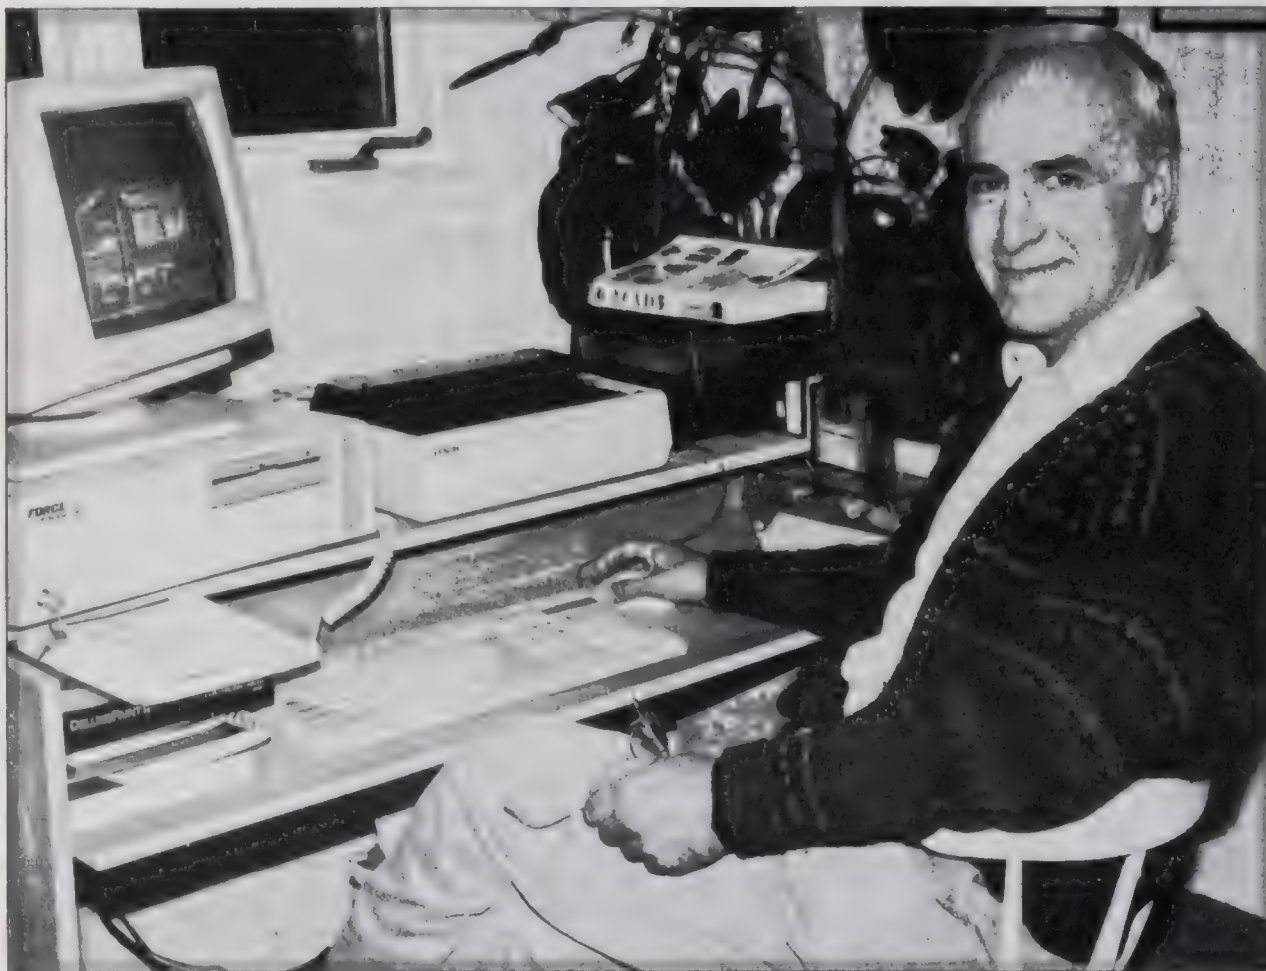

Valentine says there is no typical day for a county engineer. "Everyday is different," he says. "The work involves considering road designs for new construction, looking over maintenance problems, management of a staff of 24, and dealing with the concerns of the public."

Having been on the job for only a month, Valentine still has a lot to learn about the county's road system.

"It's going to be quite a while until I'm familiar with all the roads and their problems," he says. "I'm very impressed with the road system in Haliburton, to the credit of its engineers and staff. I don't think I've seen a better road system for the money. I just hope I can keep up the good work."

Even though he has lived in the Lindsay area for more than 30 years, Valentine is no stranger to Haliburton County.

County Engineer David Valentine has only been on the job for a month, but brings years of experience through his varied background of work as both engineer and a Sir Sandford Fleming College teacher.

Student play Mirror Game touches on affects of abuse

by Susan Grober

Maggie is madly in love with Bob, even though he verbally abuses her. Sara finds it hard to leave her boyfriend, Luke, despite the fact that he beats her up.

Sounds like a soap opera, doesn't it? But the local high school students who will portray these characters in the play Mirror Game this week say the stories are sadly true to life.

The play shows how teenagers mirror the behaviour of abusive parents, and will be presented this Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Archie Stouffer Elementary School auditorium as part of a program for Wife Assault Prevention Month.

Presented in conjunction with the YWCA Women's Safety Network, the play was suggested by OPP Constable Mike Maybee as a way of showing that family violence influences how teenagers act with others.

"Young people take cues for their behaviour in relationships from what they see at home," says teacher Ann Varty, who is directing the Grade 12 dramatic arts students involved in the production.

Written by playwright Dennis Foon, the play touches on both physical and psychological abuse.

The leads are performed by Erin Lynch (Maggie), Rebecca Felts (Sara), Matt Brydon (Luke), Lee Schellenberg and Marc MacKinnon (sharing the role of Bob).

Felts says Sara puts up with physical abuse from Luke because her mother gets beaten up by her boyfriend. "She's used to abuse," Felts says of her character. "It shows that abuse is a never-ending circle."

The students say the play sheds light on the subject of abuse, and shows why women stay with men who hurt them.

"I learned how hard it is to break away from somebody who says they love you, although they beat you all the time," says Felts. "It's too hard to break away. They always

Domestic assault stats:

According to the Women's Safety Network, in Canada:

- about one million women a year may be beaten by a husband or partner;
- one in three abused women is beaten daily or weekly;
- one in five murders is a result of domestic violence (85 per cent of these are by men against women);

- 98 per cent of marital assaults are by men against women;

- women are beaten an average of 35 times before calling police;

- 80 per cent of abused women are attacked while pregnant (pregnancy has been identified as the factor which most often precipitates violence).

Valentine says he thrives on challenges of change

While studying at the University of Toronto, Valentine learned surveying at the Frost Centre. "At that time, Haliburton didn't have a county road system, or an engineer."

Actually, Valentine's family roots are in Haliburton County. His father was raised near Gull Lake, and his mother near Moore Lake. His father's stonework can be found in many homes and cottages in Haliburton.

For more than 50 years, the family ran Valentine's Service Station in Norland, at the intersection of Highways 35 and 503.

Valentine often helped out at the station, along with his brothers Bill and Pete.

"We all worked at it all through World War 2 when Dad was in the army," says Valentine. "Even when I went away to college in '53, still on the weekends I'd be back pumping gas."

Valentine met his wife, Carole, at the service station. "She was a tourist from Toronto, and I used to sell her gas for water-skiing."

The couple didn't get together until Valentine bought a horse he couldn't handle. "She offered to help me out with it," he says, "but I never could get along with that horse. So I sold the horse, and kept the girl. I suppose her patience with the horse is what helped her put up with me over the years."

Through his work at the service station, Valentine gained his first experience in dealing with people.

And he certainly utilizes this experience in his new job, where he receives one or two complaints about roads each day.

"The job requires quite a bit of public relations," he says. "We are restrained by county policy, Ministry of Transportation policy, and terrain. So many of the things people ask for can't be done, and sometimes that's a problem."

Haliburton is in for an interesting future, says Valentine. "It's going to take a lot of foresight and discipline from those people recently elected. To control development so it's for the benefit of everybody is going to be a big problem."

"It's going to take a lot of effort to control, but that's a nice challenge, I think."

Valentine sees a lot of changes in the future. He says county planner Mark Stagg wants to set up a new computer mapping system, "which I'm all for."

Although the cost for such a system would have been "out-of-sight" a few years ago, Valentine says computer costs have gone down considerably since then.

"I always try to find new things to learn about, and this is one I really look forward to," he says, adding that he has taken a computerized mapping course.

Unlike some people, Valentine has no fear of the new computer technology. "I embrace changes," he says.

This attitude will be necessary in his new position, as many fairly dramatic changes are faced by the county in this time of fiscal restraint.

"We may have to cut back a lot on roads, especially with the increases needed for social services," he says. "But you can't let the roads fall apart, and then expect the ambulances to get through. I may be biased, but I see roads as an essential service."

"The province and the county are in a financial crunch, and one of our biggest challenges is to try to do more with less."

In the past, roads have been well-subsidized, says Valentine. And, unfortunately, recent county cuts to the roads budget mean less funding from the province. "It's a Catch-22. You have to spend money to get money. It's hard to find a happy medium. And that's what it is — it's a compromise you have to come to."

Lee Schellenberg, Erin Lynch, Marc MacKinnon, Matt Brydon and Rebecca Felts star in Mirror Game, a play presented for Wife Assault Prevention Month.

say they'll never do it again, and you want to believe them."

Lynch adds many don't realize how hard it is to break away from abuse until it's too late.

"A lot of people in school say, 'If my boyfriend hit me, I'd hit him back,'" says Lynch. "But women can't fight back if they're not as strong as men."

Lynch says working on the play made her realize how prevalent violence is in society.

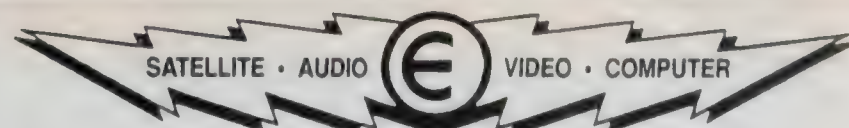

"There's probably a lot of people in our school, and in our community, who this is happening to, and we don't even realize it," she says.

Along with the Minden production, the students will give two performances at the high school on Wednesday.

All members of the public are invited to the Archie Stouffer performance.

Admission is free for students, and adults are asked to make a donation to the Women's Safety Network.

HHSS Hockey
Redmen play at Dysart Arena,
Wednesday at 7:30

It's too late for Home Hardware goalie Kevin Smith as he stretches to snag a shot by Scott Hamilton of Kountry Double D Catering. The goal was the third in a quartet notched by Double D to give them a 4-1 win over the Hardware team. The action is part of the Minden Men's Recreational Hockey League regular Monday night action.

Minden resident to play in this Saturday's Vanier Cup

Minden area residents will have a special interest in the Vanier Cup, the Canadian University Football championship game scheduled to be played this Saturday in the Toronto SkyDome.

Dwayne Cooper, the son of Jerry and Pat Cooper of Minden, is a member of the Wilfrid Laurier University team, the Golden Hawks.

His parents have of course been following his football career since he started playing for the Redmen at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School and now WLU in Waterloo.

They were in attendance at the SkyDome two Saturdays ago when the Laurier Golden Hawks defeated Queen's to win a berth in the college final.

Interestingly, another Highlands resident was also on the field for that game. Mark Robinson, the son of Dale and Brenda Robinson of Haliburton, played for Queen's.

Dwayne is an offensive tackle for the WLU team.

His parents and family will be back in the SkyDome this weekend to cheer on the Golden Hawks when they play the Mount Allison Mounties of New Brunswick for the Canadian University title. And, of course they'll be keeping a special eye on the young man in jersey number 54.

Minden's own Dwayne Cooper, number 54, plays in the Vanier Cup in Toronto's SkyDome this Saturday with WLU, Golden Hawks team mates.

Serious contenders emerging

Point spreads are starting to show as the Men's Recreational Hockey League heads into the middle of the season. The close scores of the opening games have given way to more convincing wins.

In last Monday's action, The Times defeated Hartwick Construction 7-4, Kountry Double D Catering downed Sid Stamp Fuels 4-1 and Westside Jug City blanked Home Hardware 8-0.

Doug Allison led the charge for The Times scoring two goals and assisting on another pair. The remainder of the scoring was shared among Craig Crowe with an unassisted effort and two assists, Kelly Giles with a single and two assists, plus singles from Dan Allison, Bern Berry and one unidentified player. Ivan Ingram picked up two assists while Derek Allison had a single. Andrew Burk was in the net for The Times.

Scoring for Hartwick were Sid MacKeigan with a pair, one unassisted, and a single assist, Jeff Stamp with a single and an assist, and Barry Boice with one. Assists went to Kevin Hamilton with two and a single for Tom Miscio. Rob Crowe was in net for Hartwick.

A two goal effort by Tom Haley boosted Kountry Double D catering to a 4-1 win over Sid Stamp Fuels in the second game of the evening. Haley also picked up an assist on another goal. Other markers were scored by Scott Hamilton, who also had two assists, and Tim Hunter. Additional assists were credited to Corey Walker with two and Dave Crego with one. Duane Lennie was in net.

The only goal for Stamps came from Andy Campbell with the assist going to Dave Pettes. Kevin Smith was in net.

The Westside rampage over Home was led by Dave Hartwick who notched four of the team's eight goals. One of those was an unassisted effort. Hartwick also assisted on two of the other markers. Jeff Howe and Ron May added the other two goals, one of May's was unassisted. Howe added two assists and May a single. Other assists went to Andy Scholling with two and Ed Gibbon with one.

Ron Telford earned the shut-out for Westside. Terry Crowe was in nets for Home.

Three games are scheduled for tonight starting at 8 p.m.

Cannington team meets match in OMHA Peewees

On Friday, November 15, the OMHA Peewees travelled to Cannington for their ninth game of the season. Initially it appeared as though the Cannington squad were a match for the Minden team as they had good positional play and seemed to move the puck well. This impression lasted all of 1 minute 40 seconds when Tom Bagshaw took a pass from Dennis Woods in front of the Cannington net and, with a little help from a panicking defenceman, scored for Minden. The play would not have worked had it not been for the good drive to the net by Bagshaw.

Minden's next goal came at 7:47 on a similar play. David Raback planted himself near the Cannington net and, with a nice passing play from Tom Neville to Andrew McKelvey and then to Raback, scored amidst a flurry of players.

Cannington scored the last goal of the period at 6:42 after Minden had pressed the attack deep into Cannington's territory. The Cannington lead pass caught Minden's defence off guard and Cannington's Darren Keeler was in the clear. Minden's goaltender, Justin Rowden, made a valiant effort on the deke and got a piece of the puck but not quite enough as Redmen goalie Todd McCracken smothers the puck as a Lindsay Spartan charges in on the net with Ray Cook (6) hot on his heels. The action was part of the high school hockey league action Wednesday night at the Dysart arena. The Redmen were defeated 3-1.

Goalies shine in chippy Redmen loss to L.C.V.I.

A lightning fast goaltender and a couple of bad bounces left the HHSS Redmen on the short end of a 3-1 score Wednesday night at the Dysart arena. The Redmen were playing host to the L.C.V.I. Spartans of Lindsay.

The game was punctuated by a number of fights which saw three members of the Lindsay team and four from the Redmen being assessed five minute fighting majors. The penalty includes an automatic game misconduct as well.

Between the fisticuffs, the crowd was treated to a vibrant display of goaltending as the Lindsay netminders seemed to be invincible. It wasn't until the 5:36 mark of the second period that Haliburton found the mark and Kevin Morissette hammered the puck past the goalie to break the goose egg. The assists on the goal went to Derek Wilson and Mark Morissette.

However, by the time the Redmen scored, Lindsay had already scored two goals, and, a mere 14 seconds after the Haliburton tally, the Spartans roared back to notch their third marker of the game and secure the win.

The game wasn't without its sparkling moments for the Redmen. Time and again they closed in on the Lindsay netminder and he or the defense were able to steer the attack aside. Todd McCracken in the HHSS net turned in an equally exciting game.

The game Monday November 18 against Lakefield was cancelled.

The next game for the Redmen is this Wednesday when they play host Lakefield. The game time at the Dysart arena is 7:30 p.m. The team travels out of town next Monday, playing in Lindsay against the Weldon Wildcats.

Peewee player shoots at Mach II

the puck limped in to put Cannington on the board.

Both teams settled down to good defensive hockey and while Minden had the edge in domination, neither team was able to score in the second. The definite highlight of the period was a very hard point shot on the Minden net. Rowden held his ground and took the shot off the dace mask to deflect it high on to the end wall. This shot was hard enough to take Justin right off his feet. Being spunky, he shook off the effects and carried on.

Cannington came out for the third period loaded for bear and with great determination, pushed the play to the Minden end. After a scramble the puck found its way to the point and with a lob shot, Cannington scored. Rowden, with a tremendous amount of traffic screening him, did not have a chance to see the shot let alone try to stop it.

With the score now tied, Minden picked up the pace and on a nice set up from Woods to Marty Dettman, scored at 12:35. Two minutes later Minden's Chris Eskelin took a pass from McKelvey and gave Minden what appeared to a comfortable two goal margin. Play for the next eight minutes was fast and furious with Minden again edging Cannington for quality chances to score.

With two minutes to play, the Cannington coach juggled his lines and put #17 and #24 on at the same time. I call these two the shotgun twins. At 1:44, after a scrambled draw to the left of the Minden net, #17, Don Vernon, let a bullet go from just inside the face off circle through traffic and scored. At 1:28 on the mirror image play to the right of Rowden, #24 Keeler, let a cannon shot rip to tie the game. In all fairness to Rowden, this set up on the lost draw is extremely difficult to defend. Add that both shots were travelling at Mach III and Justin did not have a chance.

That's how the game ended, with a tie. Minden learned some valuable lessons without giving up a loss and with the return next time of Jeff Wray, who is an excellent centre man for draws, the outcome will be much different. I'll give odds on that.

Next home game on November 30 against Fenelon Falls.

Atoms top Bobcaygeon

Minden OMHA Atoms have been slow off the mark this season. They recently played a tournament in Ops and seemed to come together as a team.

On Saturday November 16, Minden played host to Cannington Kings. Minden scored two quick goals in the first period, both by Nick Kulas with assists going to Blaine Saunders, Ryan Anderson and Chris Nielsen. The second period was similar to the first with Minden scoring three more goals to one by Cannington. Minden's goals were scored by Danny Jordan, Ryan Anderson and Nick Kulas with an assist going to Danny Jordan on Kulas' goal. The final period saw Minden 7 Cannington 1.

The excellent play of the team on Saturday carried over to Tuesday, November 19, when Minden played host to the Bobcaygeon Cougars. This game again saw the team explode for eight goals. Goal scorers were Nick Kulas, Philip Daniels, Danny Vanderlip, Danny Jordan, Chris Nielsen, Blaine Saunders with singles and Ryan Anderson with two. This was a balanced attack as every forward scored. The defence of Wayne Kernohan, Clay Davis, Corey Casey and Matt Reid played well in front of goalie Ashley Walker. Final score Minden 8 Bobcaygeon 3. The win leaves Minden with a record of 4 wins, 4 losses and one tie.

Don't ignore gypsy moth problem outgoing reeve Davis warns county

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Dysart's retiring reeve has warned Haliburton County not to take the infestation of gypsy moths too lightly.

At the final meeting of the current council last Wednesday, Bill Davis said Haliburton County is on the leading edge of the largest infestation in Ontario and that 347,000 acres are now being affected by the gypsy moth caterpillar.

"The devastation is moderate to severe," he said. "It's going to get worse before it gets better."

Davis chairs the county's forest management committee and for the past year also chaired the Ontario Gypsy Moth Advisory Committee.

Davis said the county's gypsy moth coordinator, Len Munt, quit at a critical time and the position had to be filled internally in order to allow the county to meet the November 30 deadline to have its mapping completed.

He reported on a meeting he attended in the United States where the gypsy moth has been threatening forests for more than 100 years.

There is concern among some American authorities that Ontario is taking the threat posed by gypsy moths too lightly, and Davis said they are worried that the current infestation in the province might spread south across the border.

He said the United States government has asked the Canadian federal government to get involved in the issue and, in response, Agriculture Canada has appointed representatives to work with the province.

Davis warned the new councillors, who will take office next month, not to ignore the threat.

"The gypsy moth is a very serious problem in the County of Haliburton."

Sherborne reeve Don Shortreed, who also served on the forest management committee, echoed Davis' warning. He said the health of the county's trees is vital to the tourist industry and individual property owners who do not meet the criteria for the provincially-funded spray program should consider hiring private spray companies to apply insecticide.

Nepean competition challenges participating Minden skaters

Five Minden skaters attended the 1992 Sunlife Eastern Ontario Sectional Figure Skating Championships held in Nepean, November 14-17.

There were a total of 18 categories which included men's and ladies' singles, dance and pairs.

There were 111 skaters in the ladies juvenile and 71 in the ladies pre-novice categories. This large number of competitors necessitated a free-skate 'run-off', as only 12 skaters may complete in the finals.

In the juvenile category, there were 12 flights, meaning only the first place skater would advance to finals. The local results are as follows:

Juvenile ladies

Flight 7 — Marita Schrader, 8th

Flight 10 — Kristi Barkwell, 7th

In the pre-novice category, there were six flights, allowing the first and second place skaters to advance to finals. Local results are:

Pre-novice ladies

Flight 1 — Andrea Pawluch, 7th

Flight 2 — Janene Garbutt, 9th

Flight 3 — Cori Barkwell, 4th

The Minden Figure Skating Club applauds the skaters for their achievements. Their coach, Jane Symons, gave the skaters a card before their events, and it read: "...a goal is only as worthy as the effort that's required to achieve it..."

We commend the skaters and coach on their efforts, and look forward to the 1993 sectional skating competition in Whitby.

Just for the record, Minden — combined with Haliburton and Bancroft — produced the loudest cheering section Nepean has ever heard! We let them know that we think our skaters are great! Congratulations girls.

Huskies howl as Monarchs flutter through with 6-0 win

On Wednesday, November 13, the Tri-County Atoms journeyed to Haliburton to face the Huskies. The Monarchs finally got their offence on track against the weaker Haliburton squad and skated to a 6-0 win.

Had it not been for a fine goaltending display by Brian Mulholland in the Haliburton net, the score could have been much higher.

Steve Ecclestone opened the scoring assisted by Colin Mackenzie. Adam Durkin made it 2-0 with Steve Ecclestone collecting an assist before Shawn Casey brought the crowd to its feet with an end to end rush that resulted in a beautiful goal to run the score 3-0. That closed the third period.

In the second period, the Monarchs piled on the pressure but try as they might, they couldn't beat young Mulholland.

In the third period, Jason Horsley rushed from his own end to score unassisted and then moments later set up Billy Fountain for the fifth goal. The sixth and final goal was scored by Colin Mackenzie on a bank shot from behind the net.

On Saturday, November 16, the Monarchs played host to Manvers and were looking for revenge against the only team to beat them this year. After three hard-fought periods of hockey, the teams headed for the dressing rooms with a 1-1 draw.

The lone Minden goal was scored by Michael Hamilton on a determined solo dash from his own zone. This highly entertaining game featured excellent goaltending at both ends of the ice with Minden netminder Cam Neville making several spectacular saves. The Minden defence of Jason Scott, Jason Horsley, Chris Little and Richard Brohm aided their acrobatic little goalie by keeping the front of the net clear of rebounds and opposition forwards. This game was a very solid team effort and certainly pleased the coaching staff.

And they called it puppy love

by Susan Grober

Ask Joan Bunn how many dogs she has, and chances are she'll just offer an embarrassed smile and quietly change the subject.

You see, the Bunn family's home is a decadent, dog lover's dream. As of last Wednesday afternoon, their home and yard were inhabited by 16 dogs and 24 puppies, with a litter of pups on the way.

But those concerned that Joan and her husband Wally's senses have gone to the dogs should realize the couple breed, sell and show their Shetland sheepdogs.

At present, there is a waiting list of 17 people who want to buy one of the popular pure-bred pups.

Many are familiar with Syndalas Registered Shelties from local fairs, parades and sidewalk sales. Originally from the Shetland Islands, the breed was crossed with a collie at one point in its history.

Shelties actually resemble collies, but are much smaller — those bred by the Bunn range from 18 to 25 pounds, and measure about 15 inches high at the shoulder.

"We always had Shelties from way back when," says Joan. "We started out with one when we first got married, and we thought about breeding her. But then the kids came around, and we had other commitments."

It was 20 years ago that the couple got their first Sheltie. "Since then, we've had others, and we just sort of collected them over the years."

The Bunn's began breeding the dogs five years ago, and their interest has grown considerably since then — at this moment they have five litters of pups.

The Shelties are registered with the Canadian Kennel Club, so no other breeder can use the name Syndalas. The Bunn's have sold many dogs over the years, to people living in such far-ranging areas as Toronto, Elmer, and North Bay.

"It's surprising the distance they come to buy the dogs," says Wally.

"We got a call the other night from a woman in Barrie wanting to take one to her sister who lives out east," says Joan.

The price for a Syndalas Sheltie ranges from $325 to $350, depending on appearance. A show quality dog will have a different body, and blockier head.

"It's like comparing a racehorse to a mule,"

Shetland sheepdogs are sensitive animals, says breeder Joan Bunn of Syndalas Registered Shelties in Minden.

says Joan. "Not that one is better or worse — but that's what the judge is looking for."

Most of the Syndalas pups are pet quality, says Joan, who likes to keep any puppies which are of show quality.

"If I sell a puppy as a pet, and it turns out to be a very gorgeous dog, I think, 'Oh, how could I have sold it?'"

Joan takes her Shelties to about five shows a year, in nearby places such as Barrie, Huntsville, Oshawa, Peterborough and Orillia.

Her first show was a three-day event in Petawawa. "It wasn't as bad as I thought it would be. Most who breed dogs pay someone to take their dogs to shows, so when you enter the ring you're in there with professional handlers."

"The first time I thought, 'Get me out of here,' but now I just love it. I think it's the thrill of the chase."

Joan takes a lot of time preparing and grooming the dogs for show. "I trim their ears and nails, and make them neat and tidy. A couple of days before, they get a bath, and I use conditioner on them."

Even though she only shows them for appearance, the dogs must be trained well enough to watch its master and stand in a good position while the judge goes over its body and angularity.

The couple's daughter, Stacey, has been taking one of the Shelties to obedience lessons to learn how to properly handle the dogs, and plans to show in the class where dogs are judged for their behaviour.

Shelties are very intelligent dogs and are easy to discipline, which makes them great pets, says Joan.

You never hit one, though. "A harsh word to a Sheltie is enough," she says. "Anything more, and she'll pout," Wally adds of the sensitive animal.

Joan finds a great deal of satisfaction in showing her dogs. "You get a feeling that you have bred something that is good, and that people appreciate the breeding. But if I never got a ribbon, I'd still be happy. Because in general I just like the dogs."

Many ribbons have been won by the Bunn's Shelties. "We haven't been showing that long," says Joan. "What I'm aiming for is a show quality dog with the Syndalas name on it. It's a real achievement. But so far, I haven't found a real perfect dog."

When breeding the dogs, Joan goes through the pedigrees and decides what aspects of a female and male would complement each other. For example, a female with a weak hind end would be bred with a male with a strong hind end.

"I don't do it so much with colouring," she says. "It's interesting to get the different colours, but you just luck out with colour."

The wide spectrum of colours to its long-haired coat is one thing which Joan likes about the Sheltie, which comes in various combinations of sable, black, white, blue, and mahogany.

Of course, these rich coats require grooming and brushing. But Joan says it's not too much of a chore.

"Shelties don't need brushing that often. If they go to a show, I prepare them three weeks in advance. But on average, they don't even need it once a week."

The dogs require more frequent brushing in the spring, when their undercoat starts to shed. "Other than that, I just do it when the mood strikes," she says.

Luckily, the Bunn's have never experienced any problems with fleas. And Joan bathes the dogs on a regular basis.

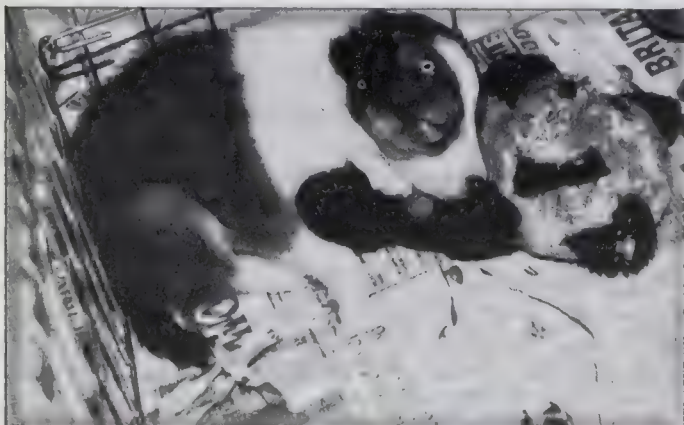

"I like to keep them clean and healthy, and I disinfect their crates every day."

In the daytime, the four male and 12 female dogs run and frolic on two acres of fenced-in property. At night, each dog sleeps in a crate kept in a building separate from the house. But a chosen few share beds inside the house with each of the Bunn's four children.

"Each of the children have their own favourite dog, and they are all house-trained so they can come inside," says Joan.

Because the Bunn's are in the breeding business, they take special care of their expectant and nursing female dogs.

How much is that doggie?

The Sheltie maternity ward is in the basement of the Bunn home, with two rows of cages to shelter the mothers and their pups.

There is even an intercom system from the basement, so Joan can keep tabs on things. Through this system, Joan listens as pregnant mom Choo Choo moved restlessly in her cage.

"She's going to whelp today," Joan predicts. There are many different signs that a dog will soon whelp, or give birth. "Some of them get restless, and will dig and scratch. Then their temperature drops to a lowest point, and they have contractions and start panting."

Even though they have witnessed a countless number of births (including nine litters just this year), the Bunnns experience the same feeling of excitement each time a dog is ready to whelp.

"Oh, it's so interesting," says Joan. "Nature is beautiful. The pups come out in a sac, and the mother usually looks after them and cleans them up, and just loves them to death."

The first birth witnessed by the Bunnns initially filled them with fear.

"Thank God for (veterinarian) Dr. Bennett," she says. "We were so nervous, that we had to phone him. And he reassured us that everything was going fine, and that the mother would take care of things."

"It doesn't matter how many books you read," says Wally. "The dogs haven't read them."

"You get this feeling of apprehension," Joan continues. "You ask yourself, 'Can I do this, or will she do it all? Will the dogs break the sac themselves, or do I break it? What if we get a stuck pup?'"

The first puppy came out tail end first, "And we were thinking, 'Oh goodness, it's coming out breach.' But once we learned it's normal for pups to come out that way, we weren't so nervous. Then it was, 'What is it, a boy or a girl?'"

The normal gestation period for a dog is 63 days. "I've had them come earlier, and had them come later," from 56 to 65 days, says Joan.

The birth process takes up to six or seven hours, but one dog, Maida, had seven pups in two hours.

The average number of puppies in a litter is from four to seven. "We had just one once," says Joan. "And sometimes we've missed, because the timing was off. You just sort of take your chances."

This year alone, the Bunnns' dogs had a total of eight litters. Joan generally breeds the dogs "whenever the mood strikes, or when we get a list of people wanting dogs. We breed according to demand, and sometimes we just have no time and skip a cycle."

Her method of breeding shows how much Joan loves animals, as those who have heard horror stories about "puppy mills" would be relieved to learn.

In puppy mills, a dog is bred each time she comes into a cycle. "All they do is breed," says Joan. "Many are kept in filth and dirt. Some die of all the puppy diseases, and it's just a mess."

"It's sad, really, because the dogs have no life," she says. "All they do is breed. It's like those chickens kept in a crate all their lives, just to lay eggs."

"I've visited a couple of places that would just make you sick. Afterward, when I got home, washed and disinfected my shoes and clothes."

Those who run puppy mills are just in it for the money, and don't care if a few puppies die of disease, because there are always more pups on the way. "It's just pathetic," Joan says.

In stark contrast, Joan finds it difficult to part with her pups. When her adult females come into heat, she keeps them separate from the others in crates, and takes them out for supervised walks.

But if one of her Shelties ever mated with a dog of another breed, Joan says she would never have the pups aborted, as some breeders do. "I would just let nature take its course."

Joan makes sure all her dogs go to good homes, even though she finds it difficult to part with them.

"I like them all. They all have something nice about them, and they're all loveable. I couldn't choose one over the other."

From her current set of litters, Joan would like to keep just one pup, but has her eye on at least three of them.

As they stumble and play, the pups in two of the litters, aged five and four weeks, look like roly-poly little bears, with fluffy ruffles of fur around their necks.

The pups in the other two sets of litters are younger, with toothless, yawning mouths, close-cropped fur, and tiny ears.

Choo Choo's restless scratching becomes louder over the intercom system, and Joan heads downstairs to give her some attention. "There's a good girl," she says, scratching Choo Choo behind the ear.

Within three hours, the dog would begin to have her litter. The first pup is born at 6 p.m., and the last at 3:30 a.m.

It was a long, arduous labour — one that brought a fifth litter of seven more puppies to the Bunn household.

Joan Bunn has no favourites when it comes to her Shelties, and loves them all.

Mask parade

A showcase for artwork by local students is a new regular feature at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery. Here acting administrator Irene Lubowitz stands amongst an exhibit of colourful masks crafted by Grade 8 students of Archie Stouffer Elementary School. Lubowitz and Archie Stouffer teacher Helen Newton came up with the idea for the showcase as a way of encouraging students to use the Minden facility. And teacher Betty Mark was instrumental in having the kids bring in this first of masks. "I think kids have such a good imagination," says Lubowitz. "I hope they're going to make more of their work available."

Land owner fined for placing fill in lake

A local contractor and property owner recently found that carrying out harmful work on waterfront property can be quite costly. James Reynolds Trucking Ltd., of Haliburton and John Sobolewski of Haliburton were recently fined $5,000 for violations of shoreline protection legislation under the Public Lands Act.

The Ministry of Natural Resources received a tip in August of this year that a property owner on South Portage Lake in Dudley Township had been illegally placing fill on the lake bed.

An investigation found that over a number of years, Sobolewski had been placing tires, metal scrap and other debris into the lake and had recently covered over this debris with gravel, converting a portion of the lake bed to dry land.

Sobolewski was charged for this illegal filling and was given authorization to remove the illegal fill material. In removing the fill, both the contractor (James Reynolds Trucking Ltd.) and landowner failed to follow conditions that the Natural Resources Ministry had placed on the work to safeguard fishery habitat and water quality concerns.

Charges were laid against the contractor and landowner for offences under Ontario's Public Lands Act. Both parties appeared before His Worship D. Elliott at Ontario Court, Provincial Division in Minden on November 19, 1991. The contractor was fined $2,000. In his sentencing statement, the presiding magistrate stressed that the days of carelessly working in the water with machinery are over and that others appearing in this court for like offences would face similar fines. The landowner, Sobolewski, was fined $3,000.

It was noted by the court that this waterfront lot was of poor quality and that Sobolewski had carried out the illegal work in an effort to change the lot to one more suitable to his needs. The court stressed that alterations of this type that affect fish and wildlife habitats are no longer allowed. This is the second case of this type in recent months that was investigated as a result of tips from the public. In October, a Minden area land development company was fined $2,000 for illegally filling shorelands on Brady Lake in Haliburton County.

Changes to retirement savings

by Doreen Hawman

The first annual statements of registered retirement savings plan "contribution room" - will be mailed to taxpayers between November 25 and December 13.

The annual statements have been made necessary by major changes in Canada's retirement savings system, effective January 1, that are intended to equalize the tax support provided to pension and RRSP's. Anyone without pensions is allowed to contribute (and deduct) $11,500 for 1991. Calculating the amount of RRSP contribution room for those belonging to pensions or deferred profit sharing plans is now so complex that Revenue Canada will do the calculations and send Canadians the annual statement.

You have until March 1, 1992 to make RRSP contributions for deduction when filing the 1991 tax return.

Further information is available by calling Revenue Canada toll-free at 1-800-267-8030.

Volunteer drivers are urgently needed throughout the county. If you have a car and time to spare and would like to assist a senior or a disabled person by driving them to an appointment, please contact the Haliburton County Information Centre to register. In Haliburton the centre is open Monday-Friday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., phone 457-2733. For residents in the Minden area, the centre is open Monday and Tuesday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., phone 286-4100. If you reside outside the toll-free area, please call collect.

Federal government provides two job development programs

Bill Scott, M.P. Victoria-Haliburton, is pleased to announce on behalf of the Minister of Employment and Immigration, the approval of two Job Development projects in Victoria-Haliburton.

S.I.R.C.H. Inc. (Supportive Initiatives for Residents in the County of Haliburton) will receive $97,009. This training program will prepare individuals to do crisis support and specialist respite care. For further information contact Gena Robertson, Administrator, Parent Support Services, (705)457-1209.

Sir Sandford Fleming College, Haliburton Campus, has received approval for $99,716 to set up a program to meet the needs for training and an interest in working in the Social/Recreational industry. For further information contact Barb Bolin at (705)457-1680.

The Job Development Program, of the Canadian Jobs Strategy, is designed to make Canadians who have been unemployed for a long time, more employable, through a combination of work experience and skills training.

Science is not always receptive to new ideas

To the public, scientists seem open and receptive to unexpected data and radical ideas which they assess objectively and rationally. That is folklore that seldom holds up in reality because scientists cannot transcend their humanity.

They get excited and become passionate about their work, but it means they can become territorial, dogmatic, jealous, tunnel-visioned and mean. Lynn Margulis is a remarkable scientist who has experienced the full force of that dark, human side of science. Not only has she survived, she continues to make waves with the scientific establishment.

Outspoken, original and fearless, the University of Massachusetts professor constantly challenges us to look at the world in new ways. Margulis became embroiled in controversy in the mid-'60s. She wondered how the earliest bacteria-like cells could have evolved into more complex eukaryotes.

Eukaryotes are defined as cells containing a nucleus, a membraned envelope enclosing chromosomes, and organelles which are distinct structures that perform such functions as photosynthesis and providing energy. Plants, animals and many micro-organisms are eukaryotes.

Margulis resurrected a long ignored idea that the organelles within eukaryotes were once free-living bacteria that long ago invaded other bacterial forms. First they were parasites, then they became symbionts, providing services for their hosts in return for a protective environment, and finally they were fully integrated into their hosts' biological makeup as organelles. It was a radical, but scientifically testable theory. However, Margulis became a pariah among her peers

by David Suzuki

for her unorthodoxy.

When I first met her in the late '70s, Margulis painfully recounted how an application for a research grant to continue her studies had been rejected. When she called to ask why, she was told: "Your research is sh-t. Don't ever bother to apply again." But she persisted and now many studies have shown that organelles have DNA very similar to bacterial DNA! Today, the bacterial origin of organelles is found in most textbooks and Margulis is an eminent member of the scientific establishment.

She stresses the important evolutionary role of co-operation rather than competition, pointing out that at least 10 per cent of our body weight is organelles that were once separate bacteria, now part of the cells of which we are made. Each of us is actually an immense community of organisms.

Margulis continues to explore ideas at the very edge of scientific thought. Now she focuses on the puzzling stability of the Earth's atmosphere and ocean salinity throughout the four billion years since life began. She champions British chemist James Lovelock's proposal in 1972 that there exists some kind of self-regulation by the sum of all life on Earth and their physical and chemical environment. This living skin around the planet, according to Lovelock and Margulis, is like an immense organism that has compensatory mechanisms to handle changes over time.

For example, the waning intensity of the sun could have been counteracted by the production of more greenhouse gases. Too much warming could have been redressed by release of compounds that induce clouds and cool the planet. Lovelock named the supra-organism BAlA after the Greek goddess of earth and it has captured the lay public's imagination. From a Gaian perspective, human beings are a small part of the global biosphere and while we are changing the biological and physical properties of the planet, the survival or extinction of our species is of little consequence.

I recently talked to Margulis and, as always, she was outspoken and provocative. In approaching the subject of Gaia, I suggested that we hold as special only the life forms on the planet with self-consciousness. "The dictionary," she replied, "defines virtually all species as being aware of the environment. By that definition, virtually all species have consciousness." Margulis pointed out that most species of plants, animals and micro-organisms can "sense" and respond to gravity, light, temperature, chemicals, a different sex or another species.

In fact, she contends, people are far less sensitive to their environments than most other organisms and perhaps that's why we have created such a terrible environmental mess. Lynn Margulis should be a model for scientists. Even while studying the smallest creatures, she keeps her mind on the big picture. It doesn't matter whether or not she's right, her real value is in stimulating us to look at ourselves and the rest of the biological world in a different way.

Park is closed to winter fishing

The fishing season is once again drawing to a close in Algonquin Provincial Park. All the waters within the boundary of Algonquin Park comprise Division #13 of the Ontario Fishery Regulations and have annually been closed to fishing of any kind since 1954.

"This year is the same as previous years, with all fishing activity in the Park closing from December 1 until the last Saturday in April of the year that follows", stated Richard Stankiewicz, the District Enforcement Coordinator for Algonquin Park. "This regulation has eliminated all winter angling pressure within Algonquin Park. It also precludes any chance of accidentally catching a game fish, which could happen if the season was left open for other non-game species. The regulation has also helped maintain the quality stocks of game fish which exist in Division #13 as all angling pressure on the fishery is contained within the open water season."

Considering that snowmachines are not allowed in most of Algonquin

Park, this means that the winter fishing closure is affecting fewer people than you may think, as most lakes would be extremely difficult to get to without the aid of snowmachines.

There are many other angling opportunities available during the winter months in Division #15 which surrounds Algonquin Park. For details, contact the District Office that is nearest to the area in which you wish to fish.

"It should be noted that there will be no winter angling allowed in that part of Eyre Township (Haliburton County) for which the lake and river beds are included as part of Algonquin Park. This is the northeast corner of the township. These waters are included as part of Division #13 for the purposes of fishing seasons," Stankiewicz adds.

"This area includes the Galipo and Upper Redstone Lakes area, and therefore can not be legally fished after November 30 in any year", says Stankiewicz. "The winter fishing closure will be strictly enforced this year."

One last time

The 1991 Haliburton County Council held its last meeting Wednesday, and for many of the councillors it was also their final appearance (at least for three years) as municipal representatives at the county level. The council took advantage of the occasion to have an official photograph taken. Members of the retiring council include, from the left, front row, Harry Davis Reeve of Stanhope Township, Don Shortreed, Reeve of Sherborne et al, 1991 County Warden Carol Puffer Reeve of Lutterworth Township, Keith Tallman Reeve of Monmouth Township, Bob McCausland Reeve of Glamorgan Township, second row, Glen Madill Deputy Reeve Glamorgan Township, Ann Barker, Deputy Reeve Stanhope Township, Keith Murphy Deputy Reeve of Cardiff Township, George Simmons Reeve of Snowdon Township, Mac Peters Reeve of Cardiff Township, Haliburton County Clerk Gary McKnight, third row, Lloyd Leadbeater Deputy Reeve of Dysart et al, Hans Liebman Deputy Reeve of Sherborne et al, Jim McMahon Deputy Reeve of Lutterworth Township, Bern Berry Reeve of Anson, Hindon and Minden, Bill Davis Reeve of Dysart et al, and Mike Maher Deputy Reeve of Anson, Hindon and Minden. Absent was Bill Howe, Reeve of Bicroft.

Christmas decorating tips offers at W.I. meeting

by Jeanne Sears, P.R.O.

Fourteen members and two guests of Minden Women's Institute met at the Common Room November 20 at 2 p.m. with the president in the chair. She thanked all for their help in the past month. The meeting continued with reports and business. A report from Irene Moore regarding eleven cards sent for a variety of reasons and collection was taken for the card fund as well as Pennies for Friendship.

The Area Convention report was given by Jean Lacey and expenses for this are to be paid.

After some discussion, members were asked to place any donations for Christmas Boxes in various stores as they purchase or make them. Carol Miles was introduced as Curator of the County Town Museum.

Elizabeth Carrell gave us a demonstration of Christmas decorations using dried flowers, cones etc. A gift was presented to her with our sincere thanks.

Maud Coulter gave her usual amusing reading.

The meeting adjourned and auctioneer Irene disposed of items from the Roll Call. We then enjoyed snacks and tea and had a chat with friends.

The next meeting is our Christmas Party on December 18 at the Minden United Church hall with an exchange of gifts. Please bring a guest - all ladies are welcome.

Looking ahead to new challenges as a term on the board finishes

With the election of a new Board of Directors, my term comes to an end and with it my mandate as a Director, a Treasurer, a Public Relations Chairman and a Column Writer. It is writing the column that I have enjoyed, perhaps, the most of all. It is akin to a hanging in the morning, in that it tends to condense your thoughts and clarify your ideas as the relentless weekly deadline approaches every Wednesday evening.

Writing and words have always held for me a certain fascination. Sigmund Freud once wrote "Words and magic were in the beginning one and the same thing and even today words retain much of their magical power." There is a certain satisfaction in the creative process of forming thoughts into words and then sharing it with others.

There is never a good time to leave the Chamber Board. If the Chamber is doing what it is supposed to do, that is promoting economic activity in Haliburton

Chamber News

by Shawn Hagerman

County, then things will always be in turmoil. I remember a frosty evening in October of 1980 when Bob Stinson asked if I would like to be on the board. I asked what you do and he said just go to the odd meeting every once in a while. The next night, I was a new director. It's been a wild ride ever since, having worked with six managers, various different directors and many good people on the municipal level.

From each, I have learned a lot, and would like to thank everybody for the opportunity to have learned and to have grown and to have served. After eleven years, there are simply other things I want to do, other areas I want to serve and it was with great reluctance that I chose to draw the curtain here, so another door could then be opened somewhere else.

The Chamber has always had dark hours. I will never forget, as a new director being hunkered down in then President Ken Langdon's living room. We, as usual, had no money and had just learned the building inspector had condemned our old office. As we dithered about what to do Ken cut through the gloom by saying he would, if necessary, personally guarantee the loan to build a new office. It was that determination and leadership that is always there in the business community that is the Chamber's greatest strength. It was the same this year when volunteers came forward to help staff our office. The Chamber will survive because the members have a real need for an organization that represents them, their concerns, their hopes and their dreams.

As the great twentieth century philosopher, Woody Allen said, "It is clear the future holds opportunities; it also holds pitfalls. The trick will be to seize the opportunities, avoid the pitfalls and get back home by 6 p.m." As for me, I think I hear the dinner bell ringing. They need some help with supper tonight and I want to play with the kids after 6 p.m. before they grow up tomorrow. Got to go. Take care.

Staanworth residents learn about abuse

Residents of Staunworth Court welcomed Constable Mike Maybee who spoke to us on how a bit of awareness or a little bit of prevention could prevent one from being a victim of crime. He explained in detail "Elder Abuse" from harm done to older persons by family or strangers. He also explained the many frauds in our society which are geared to cheat the older person. He urged us to always ask for identification and then to double check and warned against ever giving anyone a blank cheque.

The Vials of Life was explained and containers given out. Safety practices when travelling were also mentioned and the CALL POLICE signs given to drivers. Pertinent questions were asked of the Constable and all present had an interesting afternoon learning "How Not To Be A Victim."

We have some residents on the sick list — Siiri Mielonen, Henry Howe, Frank and Marion Fisher and Lil Davidson have all objected to the weather but are making great efforts to be healthy for Christmas.

We all enjoyed an evening out for dinner when Area 5 served us a roast beef dinner in our Common Room.

Perhaps we could all take note - Don't live in the Past. Preoccupation with old mistakes and failures leads to self-criticism and depression. And — No matter how long you nurse a grudge, it won't get better. So forgive!

Looking to Canada's future

What's ahead for young Canadians? The answer lies in how well Canadians work together to prepare our youth for the highly competitive years ahead.

Some very hard facts cloud the future of young Canadians. For example, three out of ten students drop out of high school before graduating, more in some areas. Four out of ten adults cannot read or do math well enough for everyday tasks. The sad truth is that these high school dropouts earn less and are more likely to be unemployed.

Another barrier for young Canadians is that our share of world trade is declining and we are slipping from our competitive position. This is the era of the hard drive, floppy disk and lap top. Unless our young women and men have a grasp on these technologies, we will fall further behind.

We are already hard at work trying to solve the problem.

We now spend $11 billion in transfers to the provinces for education. We have recently launched a stay-in-school plan directing $300 million over five years to find ways to keep your Canadians in school. In 1988 we created the Canada Scholarships in Science and Technology for 2,500 young Canadians each year — half of which must be awarded to women.

The solution is not more money, but results. These will come as all of us work together to better meet Canada's education needs. It is not just the responsibility of someone else or some other level of government — but of all Canadians.

Young Canadians are already convinced of the need for education. Most of them — more than four out of five in a recent poll — are optimistic about their future. Almost that many believe that doing well in school is the key to their success. Let's help them along.

What's ahead for young Canadians? A promising future, if we prepare them for it. What's ahead for Canada? Prosperity, if we prepare our youth for the challenge ahead.

Bazaar is best ever

Senior League

by Winnifred Barnum

What a glorious day today is, Sunday November 10, 1991. Last Sunday, the chapel service was conducted by Rev. John Burgess with Alice Jones kindly playing the organ. The residents sincerely thank them.

Monday afternoon the residents' council was held in the auditorium. The attendance was very good and we were pleased to have our administrator present to announce a little of what we may expect to have happen in the near future, to improve our home.

Tuesday afternoon, Doris Robertson took those who wished to go, for a bus ride. We travelled down Highway 35, over #121 to Fenelon Falls and back to Kinmount and home, after stopping at Kawartha Dairy for our ice cream cones. Linda Fry played her guitar and she and Doris led the singing on the complete trip and Greg Sawyer (Doris' helper on Activities) helped with the residents adeptly. Thanks Doris, Greg and Linda.

Wednesday, November 6 after the hard work of many people, our Christmas Bazaar was held. The Hyland Crest Auxiliary managed the delicious tea and bake sale table (which disappeared like hot cakes). Hyland Crest residents had the Christmas gift displays and draw on the quilt. The winner of the quilt was Fern Greer of Bracebridge. The bazaar was the best we have seen for some time. Everyone was pleased with the outcome.

Happy Hour was held Friday with Gordon Kidd supplying the music on a guitar and it was most enjoyable. The volunteers were Don and Ellen Holden, Mary Guillemain, Bonnie Fullan and Janke Thomas.

Vicki's Water Babies came and provided Thursday's tea party. It was delicious and was served by Dorothy Beddington, Irene Fuhr, Nancy Cook and Jeanette Bratton-Ellis. Nancy Gayton sang and played the piano during tea and Grace Coburn, Linda Fry and Dorothy Beddington accompanied Nancy with singing. It was a happy afternoon. We thank them sincerely.

Friday evening the Grandfathers were here to entertain us in the Trillium Lounge. Our hearty thanks to Bill Payne, Eldon Deacon and Don White.

We are sorry to hear that Gertrude McKay, Violet Thornett and Marshall Harrison are at present in hospital. Hope they are soon on the road to recovery.

Christmas show in Dorset

by Joel Levis, County Librarian

As a special Christmas present for library lovers and their friends - no matter what the age - the Haliburton County Public Library will be presenting Poppy's Christmas on Saturday, December 7, 1991 at 1:30 p.m. in the Community Centre, Dorset.

As usual, there will be no charge and everyone is invited to come and enjoy.

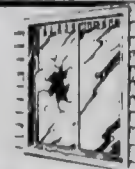

After spending all of her money buying Christmas presents for her friends and family, Poppy discovers that her best friend has broken her cassette deck, her very valued possession. Torn by the desire to give and feelings of anger, she falls asleep and dreams about a more perfect place and through her dream learns more about herself and Christmas.

Presented by the Little Red Theatre, this is a truly special production for children of all ages including theatre, dance, music and, of course, Santa Claus will be there for the young and the young at heart.

A special Christmas presentation from the Haliburton County Public Library and

The Minden and District Lioness Club has presented the Minden Hospital with a clutch of teddy bears and a panful of cash. The bears, donated by Ethel Baker and Zellers Department store will be for the enjoyment of children staying at the hospital, while $1192.05 represented the proceeds from the club's recent Bedpan Blitz fund raising drive. Nurse Administrator Jean Anderson accepted the donations from Lioness representatives, including, from the left, front row Ena Marion, Maureen Boekestyn, Georgina Kernohan, Lorna Hawkins, back row, Muriel Harrington, Lorna Hicks, Anderson, Doris Thompson and Edna Moulton.

Constitutional reform is about many things.

But mostly it's about you.

As Canadians, we are now facing one of the most important challenges in our history. Proposals have been put forward by the Government of Canada to improve our Constitution. These proposals, for a more united and prosperous Canada in which all Canadians can feel at home, are currently being reviewed by a special parliamentary committee. They will also be considered by a series of conferences run by independent Canadian organizations.

Some of the proposals include:

- ◆ a Canada clause that speaks of our hopes and dreams as Canadians, our values, our diversity, our tolerance and our generosity of spirit

- ◆ recognizing the right of aboriginal peoples to govern themselves while being protected by Canadian law
- ◆ ensuring recognition of Quebec's distinctiveness and of minority language groups
- ◆ reforming the Senate to make it elected, effective and much more equitable than it is now
- ◆ strengthening Canada's economic union so Canadians can work and conduct business anywhere in the country
- ◆ guaranteeing property rights.

Get involved and find out more about how these proposals will shape the future of Canada, call toll-free:

Cemetery records now available at Minden library

by Cec Rowe

The Haliburton Highlands Genealogy Group recently presented the Minden Library with six volumes of Cemetery records covering all the townships in Haliburton County.

These are recordings of monument inscriptions completed by the group over the past two summers. Copies were also sent to the National and Provincial Archives as well as Ontario Genealogical Society.

These records constitute a valuable service of information for people researching their ancestors for birth and death dates. The group has answered inquiries from U.S.A. and various points in Canada in the relatively short period of its existence.

Information is available from the Minden Library or H.H.G.G., Box 567, Minden, Ontario, KOM 2K0

BE A POWER SAVER

KEEP YOUR ENERGY USE DOWN WHEN THESE GO UP.

Every year millions of colourful, festive lights decorate homes, office buildings and evergreens across the province.

But you can neatly trim the amount of electricity your lights use; without affecting your enjoyment one bit.

If you're planning to buy new strings of lights, or replace old, worn ones, try energy saving 5-watt bulb strings, instead of the usual 7-watts. They come in the same colours, and are every bit as cheery and festive. But they use up to 30% less electricity and for that they deserve a special holiday cheer.

You can also save energy by turning your holiday lights off when you're not at home. And by using a timer, you can set your lights to turn on and off automatically, ensuring they are not left on all night.

By doing these little things, you can save energy while enjoying a bright holiday season.

For more information on energy saving lighting call, toll free, 1-800-263-9000. And have a safe and happy holiday season.

Remembrance Day services well attended

School principal McKay Brydon led pupils from Archie Stouffer Elementary School to Minden Cairn for the Remembrance Day service.

It was nice to see how attentive the pupils were. Wreaths were laid by the pupils, girl guides, brownies, legion branch and Ladies Auxiliary. A very appropriate address was given by Gareth Kellett.

Best turnout yet for Branch 636 Remembrance parade November 10. It made one's heart feel good. "We do remember". Thanks to our two volunteers Pat McMurter and Terry Campbell who put on a good lunch afterward.

There was also a good turnout of our branch at the service in Haliburton on November 11.

For Your Service

by Georgina Deeks Branch 636, Royal Canadian Legion

The poppy fund campaign was a success topping last year. Many thanks to all the volunteers and those who gave and did not forget.

Another successful fish & chip night was held Nov. 16. Reg Munns led a sing-song on guitar. Doris Brown gave a couple of her hilarious skits. Door prizes were won by Elaine Eveleigh, Ed Deeks and Muriel Green. There were tickets sold on two pillows made by Leanna Bathe. The lucky winner was no-other than Ed Deeks which made me very happy. A good night was had by all.

Watch for our upcoming events. On Saturday, December 7 at 7:30 p.m. Branch 636 Turkey Roll & Penny sale. December 31, New Year's dance with DJ from Big O. Tickets will be available at the bar shortly. Watch papers for more information. In the Santa Claus parade November 30, sponsored by the Lions Club, watch for our legion float. Put these dates on your calendar.

December 4, General meeting.

The January general meeting has been changed to the 8th. Again, I remind you, this is your legion and this is where you speak out and be heard. So, until then, see you on the fourth!

I, in this short dialogue, want to thank you and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones alive, in your perpetual glory. Amen Moi. Say for 3 consecutive days and promise to publish this dialogue as your favour is granted. 11D

The family of the late Reuben J. Monk wish to thank their many friends for the expressions of sympathy received during the recent loss of a much-loved father and grandfather. A very special thank-you to the staff members of both funeral homes for taking over and providing 24 hour coverage during our absence. Also to Marj and Rob Young for their telephone coverage. To each and every one of you, a most heartfelt thank you. He shall always be remembered. Gord, Donna, Cameron & Kirsten Monk.

IN MEMORIAM

BURK, Cecil - In loving memory of my dear husband who passed away November 27, 1987.

Once in a while we meet someone who always knows how to make us feel good. Who understands us as few others do. Who's glad for us when things are going well, Who's there to listen when we have something to share. Once in a while, we find someone we can really depend on, And when we do, it's like coming home. That was my dear Cecil. His loving wife, Jean SHAW; In loving memory of our two dear brothers, Charlie who passed away November 19, 1987 and Bob, who passed away January 22, 1988.

As time unfolds another year, Memories keep them forever near, Silent thoughts of times together, Hold memories that will last forever. Lovingly remembered by sisters Shirley and Pearl.

HUGHES: In loving memory of our dear mother and grandma, Shirley who passed away November 27, 1990.

No farewells were ever spoken, No time to say goodbye. You were gone before I knew it, Only God alone knows why. My heart still weeps with sadness, Secret tears will always flow, For what it meant to lose you, No one will ever know. Each time I see your photo You seem to smile and say, Don't cry, I'm only sleeping, We'll meet again some day. Sadly missed and loved always, Joanne, Kirk, Kevin and Janine Harrison.
